FIERCER ASSAULTS ON SEBASTOPOL

SOVIET TROOPS STORM WAY TO CRIMEA

THE force and density of the fire showered on Sebastopol surpass anything in the history of warfare, and every inch of territory defended by the land forces is within the range of fire of all arms, says a "Red Star" report. In the first eight days of June, beside shells and mines, about 9,000 bombs were dropped on the town itself. Each day the German assault has intensified, and "Pravda" describes the fierce fighting which continues in the northern sector as crucial.

Reports from Stockholm state that Red troops, from a strongly-escorted convoy from Caucasian ports, had stormed their way ashore and created a bridgehead at Yalta, threatening the German rear, and that Axis reinforcements have been despatched from Simferopol, north-east of Sebastopol, and Feodosiya.

The Soviet midnight communiqué said that the Russians had withdrawn from Kupyansk, 55 miles east and slightly south of Kharkov, on the Kharkov,Rostov Railway.

MOSCOW, Thursday. — Reuter's Special Correspondent states:—"Fighting for Sebastopol is increasing in fury as the third week of the siege ends. Yesterday the Germans were using three infantry divisions in the attack, and 30 tanks were thrown in to support the main blow from the north. Their main effort is aimed at widening the strip of land gained a few days ago in the outer defences. Repeated attacks throughout the whole of yesterday, especially against a certain hill and village, were intended to force a break through and get around an important defence line. In the battle, which lasted from dawn till nightfall, only one Soviet unit had to give ground. Soviet positions are being bombed and shelled day and night, and the scream of dive-bombers over the city itself is almost unending.

"In a message to the defenders the Military Council of the Black Sea Fleet stated that marines and Red Army men completely smashed the 22nd, 50th, 132nd and 72nd German infantry divisions and the 1st and 18th Rumanian divisions. Heavy losses were inflicted on the 24th and 170th German infantry division and the 4th Rumanian Jaeger division, and the Germans lost more than 150 tanks and hundreds of 'planes.

"ONLY LOCAL"—BERLIN

BERLIN, Thursday—Axis offensive activities on the eastern front are "still in the nature of preparatory actions," a German military spokesman said to-night. The present stage "is not to be compared with the situation at the beginning of larger local actions this year, in which German troops were employed at most in regiment strength."

Present operations "must be described as 'local operations with stronger means,' although these operations cannot yet be regarded as the beginning of the expected German major offensive. They are nothing but half-measures, aimed at the capture of the last springboards contemplated in German strategy." This, the spokesman added, applied not only to the Volkhov sector, south of Leningrad, but also to the operations south-east of Kharkov and at Sebastopol.—(Reuter.)

SOVIET LANDING

LONDON, Thursday — Vichy radio said to-night that Soviet troops which landed at Yalta, on the Crimea's southern shore, had been engaged by Axis troops, which had received reinforcements from Simferopol and Feodosiya.—(Associated Press.)

MOSCOW, Thursday. — To-night's Soviet communiqué states:—"During June 25 our troops in the Kharkov direction continued fighting against the advancing German-Fascist troops. On other sectors no material changes took place."

The communiqué also says that after stubborn fighting Soviet troops withdrew from a town on the Kharkov front.—(Reuter.)

MERITS OF MATÉ

POPULAR IN THE NORTH

Tea merchants in Dublin are investigating the possibility of obtaining larger quantities of yerba maté, which the South Americans drink instead of tea.

Already popular in the North of Ireland, maté is held by its advocates not only to be a palatable drink, but to cure indigestion, rheumatism and insomnia.

A Northern correspondent learns that it was introduced to Belfast many years ago by linen salesmen who visited the Latin-American cities. It is selling in Belfast now at 2/6 a lb., and, in one large world-famed linen house, it is served to the office staff and buyers every morning and afternoon. The buyers say that it dispels that heavy after-lunch drowsiness.

In countries like the Argentine, Brazil, Uruguay and Paraguay, says the correspondent, the natives are large meat-eaters, consuming up to one and a-half pounds, and more, at a sitting. With copious draughts of maté, sipped from a gourd through a bombilla, or strainer, they avoid indigestion—in fact, indigestion is almost unknown. Like tea in the West of Ireland in pre-war days, the maté pot is always on the hob.

Maté is prepared by placing a couple of teaspoonfuls in a small saucepan, with hot water. It is permitted to simmer for ten or fifteen minutes and then strained.

An Irish Times reporter, who tasted it yesterday, said that its flavour, at first, suggested boiled hay! The second cup, taken without milk, was, however, a big improvement, and a taste for the beverage could rapidly be acquired, he said.

With the likelihood of more severe rationing of tea in Eire, maté should prove an excellent and beneficial substitute—if it can be obtained in the necessary quantities.

SMALLER EVENING PAPERS

The Dublin Evening Herald and the Dublin Evening Mail will from Monday next be reduced in size for five days in the week from four pages to two, owing to the scarcity of newsprint.

The Irish Catholic, a weekly journal published in Dublin for the past 54 years, is to suspend publication after this week unless sufficient newsprint is made available within the next few days.

CATTLE FOR BRITAIN

Under an order of the British Department of Agriculture licences will still be required for the importation from Eire of cows in milk, cows and heifers in calf, and bulls. Restrictions on import of other classes of cattle will be removed from Monday next to enable British farmers to secure supplies of young dairy heifers and yearling beef cattle.

IMPORTANT TALKS AT WHITE HOUSE

SECRET CONFERENCE WITH CONGRESSMEN

MR. CHURCHILL and President Roosevelt conferred yesterday with Congressional leaders and members of the Pacific War Council in a series of secret talks, which stamped the day as one of the most important since the Premier's arrival.

President Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill met the leaders of Congress at the first of a series of war conferences in the morning. Meanwhile members of the Pacific War Council were waiting to see Mr. Churchill and President Roosevelt immediately afterwards. Mr. Churchill gave the Congressmen considerable military information regarding the Libyan campaign when he discussed it "in detailed fashion" with them.

Visitors to the White House said that Mr. Churchill had discussed the entire war situation to date, and they were hopeful of the result of the Premier's explanations. Leaders of Congress were given a forty minute review of the "world situation," which touched also on the opening of a second front in Europe.

The Speaker of the House of Representatives, Mr. Sam Rayburn, told the Press that the Libyan phase was "covered in some detail," and the second front mentioned incidentally. That subject "always comes up, of course."

None of the Congress leaders would go into details of their talks—many being of "a military nature."

WAR COUNCIL

Mr. Nash, New Zealand Minister in Washington, declared after the meeting of the Pacific War Council: "I do not think the Axis will get Cairo. I don't want to be optimistic, but I want to emphasise that things are not so bad as they look." On the evidence presented the situation in the Middle East looks better than Press reports suggest. It is correct to say that there are things there which may make the going unpleasant for the Axis."

Mr. Nash said that the meeting of the Pacific War Council was well worth while. President Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill gave surveys and presented the problems with which they are faced.

"They have a job in hand which will ultimately give results," he added. "From the way the entire world situation was presented by Mr. Churchill and President Roosevelt there will be a general policy of agreement between New Zealand, Australia and China."

SENATOR'S CRITICISM

Senator Allen Ellender, a member of the Senate Naval Committee, returning to his attack on the British war effort, urged in the Senate yesterday the designation of President Roosevelt as "Supreme Leader" of the United Nations' war effort, to replace what he called "the apparent apathy of British military leadership."

"We in America are alarmed over the apparent apathy of British military leadership and its inability thus far to defeat the Axis. I believe that most Americans and a large amount of the British people are nauseated and disgusted with the continuous inactivity of millions of soldiers now stationed on the British Isles awaiting an attack that may never come."

Mr. W. M. Hughes, Australia's last war Premier, said this of Mr. Churchill, according to a Reuter telegram from Sydney: "I would rather we lost more battles than lose Churchill. It is he who has brought us as far as we have gone, who has ranged America on our side, and who is responsible for the alliance with Russia. He chooses the best men available to carry out his policy, and he cannot be blamed for tactical errors."

DUTCH MINISTER

Dr. Van Kleffens, Netherlands Foreign Minister, discussed the war situation with Mr. Cordell Hull, U.S. Secretary of State, for half an hour. Afterwards he lunched at the White House with members of the Pacific War Council.

NO CORRUPTION SUGGESTED

On the third day of his opening speech for the defence in the action for £50,000 damages for libel by ten members of the Belfast Corporation against the "Northern Whig," Ltd., Mr. J. M. Whitaker, K.C., in the Northern Ireland High Court yesterday, contended that there was no suggestion of corruption by the use of the words: "All we want is the spending of your money."

The writer of the article, said counsel, had before him a report which was a true account of what had happened at the meeting. There were no reasons given for the action taken, and those who voted against the recommendations must have been actuated by some motive irrelevant to the matters in the report, or, alternatively, they must have been influenced by others for reasons irrelevant to the report.

The motive, which the twenty-one "emphasised unblushingly," was their desire to get rid of the "Big Six." It was an objection to an investigation conducted by the "Big Six," though it was the personnel was important, not the merits.

The hearing was adjourned.

KNIGHTS OF MALTA

The Irish Association of Knights of the Sovereign Military Order of St. John of Jerusalem and of Malta held the annual general Council at the residence of the Most Rev. Dr. Wall, Bishop of Thasos, Chaplain Conventual to the Association, St. Mary's, Haddington road, Dublin, on last Thursday.

The Knights present were:—W. P. Wilson Lynch, Vice-president; T. J. Gaisford St. Lawrence, Chancellor Secretary; H. St. J. Blake, Treasurer; Ulick Creagh Jennings, Councillor; Count P. J. O'Byrne, Councillor, and Roger Sweetman. Owing to illness, the Marquis MacSwiney of Mashanaglass, President of the Association, was unable to be present.

AIR RAID ON BIRMINGHAM

Five German bombers were destroyed in raids on Britain early yesterday. London's guns were in action for several minutes when a lone 'plane passed low over the area. Only flares were dropped. Bombs fell on four districts in the West Midlands and in coastal areas in East Anglia.

According to the German communiqué high explosive and incendiary bombs were dropped in the industrial area of Birmingham.

The Minister of Aircraft Production in Britain has appointed Mr. Alexander Dunbar to be Controller-General at the Ministry in succession to Sir Charles Craven, who, as already announced, has had to resign that appointment on medical advice.

MR. LEMASS'S POLICY CRITICISED

SHORTAGE ATTRIBUTED TO QUOTAS AND TARIFFS

THERE are 45,000 acres under beet this season, compared with 73,000 last year, and, owing to the shortage of artificial manures, the yield will not be 70 per cent. of last year's yield.

This was stated in the Dail yesterday, during criticisms of the supply position, and of the general policy of the Department of Supplies in relation to price control.

Mr. J. M. Dillon said that fifty per cent. of their difficulties about supplies were due to the Minister's policy of quotas, tariffs and prohibitions—people would not be allowed to import supplies of essential commodities.

Mr. W. Davin (Labour) suggested the creation of a Transport Advisory Body. Production and distribution, he said, should be the responsibility of a single Minister.

Fianna Fail, Mr. J. M. Dillon (Ind., Monaghan) suggested, now was realising that national self-sufficiency was not the happy thing they had at one time thought it. Ordinary humble citizens going into the Department of Supplies were treated as if they were "rogues." These people did not like to have it said to them: "What you say is one thing, but what you mean is another."

Doctors were honest professional men trying to serve their patients, and should not be treated by the Department in regard to their petrol allowances as racketeers. Ninety-nine per cent. of doctors would carry out the spirit of the regulations—more important than carrying out the letter.

The Minister for Supplies, continued Mr. Dillon, had said that he was entitled to take a law-abiding citizen's livelihood away because he had a suspicion that that citizen broke the law. Against the powers of the Executive the ordinary citizen could invoke only the courts of law, and it was against all the principles of freedom that because a civil servant had reasonable grounds for suspecting that a citizen had committed a breach of some regulations that citizen had to go "a-quake before a civil servant."

CLOSING OF MILLS

"Fantastic" was Mr. Dillon's description to the powers taken by the Ministry in relation to the closing of mills. "We could expect tyranny from an outsider," he said, "but when you have got to fight your own neighbour for the right to live, life ceases to be worth living and becomes a sham." He insisted that Orders should be enforced through the instrumentality of the courts.

Adverting to the large number of Emergency Orders, he said that the multiplicity of them, and the impossibility of getting details of them for weeks after they were made, was making law-breakers of businessmen. Speaking of the temptations created for honest businessmen in their efforts to serve the public, he said that the Minister either should fix prices for everyone or take his hands off such commodities as oats and thread, and allow competition to bring down the price. Declaring that both sides had been ruffled, Mr. Dillon asked for an exercise of charitable feeling both by the Minister and the drapers.

A minority of people, he said, were getting no flour at all, and he knew of one woman who had only cold potatoes to bring to her husband working on the bog and to her three children at school. He was afraid there was going to be a shortage of flour next year, unless they brought in a rationing system while they had still approximately enough to go round.

He sympathised with the Minister in the matter of tea. The whole kernel of the difficulty was that supplies to this country were controlled by people in London and Belfast. There was no tea in the country, and the sooner they made up their minds to drink coffee, of which they had plenty, the better.

POLICY TO BLAME

Fifty per cent. of their difficulties about supplies, said Mr. DILLON, were due to the Minister's policy of quotas, tariffs and prohibitions, because people would not be allowed to import supplies of essential commodities.

It was impossible, Mr. Dillon said, for anyone not on the register of importers to import a single pair of boots and shoes, and he predicted that, statements to the contrary, boots and shoes would have to be rutioned in six months' time.

With their export surplus in the matter of trade they should have acquired tangible assets in Great Britain, but, as a result of the policy of the Minister during the year, the export trade going into Great Britain was bringing them only "pieces of paper," for which they could buy nothing. They could have had in this country stocks piled up as big as Leinster House, and they could have built up in Great Britain debts that would stagger creation for the purpose of acquiring goods, and they could be now reducing their liabilities week after week instead of getting only useless pieces of paper.

Mr. M. BRENNAN (F.G., Roscommon) said that he wondered whether any effort was being made to conserve iron for agricultural purposes. It was needed for horse-shoeing and for vehicle tyres. There was a big export trade in scrap iron from this country. The allegation made by those engaged in the trade was that this type of scrap iron could not be used here, but his information was that that representation had been made purely as a blind, so that the iron could be got out of the country. Some steps should be taken to stop the export.

On the question of distribution and supplies, he said that there were families in the country who had not had a cup of tea for weeks. Great quantities of tea were being exported across the border and sold for exorbitant prices. If the Minister would only grapple with the situation he would get the assistance of everybody in the House. Could there not, he asked, be a national tea pool? At the moment there was no relation between the tea ration part of the card and the tea supply.

Professor JOHN O'SULLIVAN (F.G., Kerry) held that the only thing that the Government had done, and done successfully, was to increase their despotic powers. It was their failure even to use those despotic powers properly that was responsible for the contempt which was growing up throughout the country for the Government.

Commenting on the clothes rationing scheme, Mr. W. T. COSGRAVE (F.G., Cork) said that it was a panic Order, which was the result of a panic decision, and there were panic blunders in the whole thing. "Whenever the Minister gets up against anything," said Mr. COSGRAVE, "you can expect panic."

A transport advisory body was suggested by Mr. W. DAVIN (Lab., Leix-Offaly), who declared that if the transport system was collapsing, it was evidence of the inability of private ownership to produce efficiency. Production and distribution should be the responsibility of a single Minister. Blame for the present collapse of the railway system, owing to failure to get sufficient coal, was on the directors of the company, though the Minister should be compelled to bear his share of responsibility for not having helped the company to carry over the emergency. He could not understand why the Great Southern Railways under the new control, backed by the Minister in every way, could not get a reasonable supply of coal, while the Great Northern Railway, operating in the jurisdiction of this country, could get all the coal they want, apparently.

Mr. LEMASS—The Great Northern Railway Company will not agree to that.

Continuing, Mr. DAVIN said that he agreed with the Minister in changing the control of the Great Southern Railway Company, but he could not see why he had, as advisers to the new Chairman, four gentlemen who were mainly responsible for leaving them without coal in this country. Would the Minister say why the Great Northern Railway could get all the coal they needed—was the British Government backing the Great Northern Railway, while our Government could not back the Great Southern Railway to get coal from the same source when the coal was available?

Asked by Mr. Cogan (Ind., Wicklow) why he had failed in the first year of the war to purchase supplies of tea, Mr. LEMASS (Minister for Industry and Commerce) said that it was because the Government then had made an arrangement with the British Government, of which the Dail was aware, under which they were to give Eire its full supply of tea, this country undertaking not to purchase tea in competition with them.

Progress was reported, and the House was adjourned till 10.30 a.m. to-day.

ELECTION REPORT DENIED

FINE GAEL SCEPTICAL

No decision has yet been taken concerning the holding of a general election. There is, therefore, no truth in the rumour circulated yesterday of the possibility of an election being held on 15th August.

When an Irish Times representative mentioned the statement to General Mulcahy, of the Fine Gael Party last night he appeared sceptical. "Don't you think that settles it?" he was asked.

"Does it?" was his laconic reply.

STORE CATTLE EXPORTS

As announced in our advertising columns, the British and Northern Ireland authorities have relaxed some of the present restrictions on the importation of store cattle from this country. As from next Monday, the existing "dentition regulations" will cease to operate as regards store cattle. Licences will still be required in respect of cows in milk and other classes.

Up to now store cattle for export were required to have two permanent teeth. That condition will not be required after next Monday.

BOTTLED MILK PRICE

The Minister for Supplies has made an Order the effect of which is to increase by ½d. per pint the price of bottled milk in certain areas. Particulars are given in advertisement.

IRISH STEWED STEAK

BRITAIN CAN TAKE MORE

Our London Correspondent writes:—Representatives of the Irish Government, accompanied by representatives of the Irish Meat Canning Industry, are meeting high officials of the British Ministry of Food at Colwyn Bay at present to discuss the arrangements for supplies of Eire canned stewed steak to Britain for the second six months of this year. The arrangements previously made are due to expire at the end of the present month.

I understand that Lord Woolton is anxious to take all the stewed steak we can send, and that the question is really one of our ability to produce and export. The trade in this juicy commodity is approaching the £1¼ millions a year mark. Tin supplies for the trade continue to be secured without any difficulty.

BARLEY AND OATS PRICES

Deputies James Hughes, Michael Brennan and Patrick Browne have given notice to move the following motion in the Dail:—"That in view of the importance of stimulating the maximum production of cereals, both for human consumption and for further agricultural production, and the necessity for leaving a fair margin to the producer as a means of eliminating incentives to illegal transactions, Dail Eireann is of opinion that the prices of oats and barley as fixed by the Minister for Agriculture are insufficient to meet the increased costs of production and the inevitable reduction in yields consequent on the scarcity of manures."

Forty-five bicycles were stolen in Dublin last week. From Saturday until Wednesday of this week 27 were reported missing.

MR. CAHIR HEALY'S DETENTION

LONDON, Thursday.—Mr. Peake, Under-Secretary, Home Office, stated, in the House of Commons to-day, that the detention, under the Defence Regulations, of Mr. Cahir Healy, M.P., must be continued.

Mr. McGovern (I.L.P., Shettleston), who asked what form of inquiry had been held in place of the Advisory Committee appeal, was told that Mr. Healy had not availed himself of his right to make objections to the Advisory Committee. He had, however, been given information upon which the Minister decided to make the order, and Mr. Healy wrote a letter in reply. The Minister thought it right to give him an opportunity of explaining more fully his statement in this letter, and asked the chairman of one of the panels of the Advisory Committee to see him on his behalf. Having considered all the circumstances, he had decided that Mr. Healy must continue to be detained, though he could not say for what period his detention might prove to be necessary.

Mr. McGovern — As Mr. Healy claimed that his only interest was to work for a united Ireland and he had no intention of taking any action detrimental to the interests of this country, could the Minister say why this individual should be detained; and also, as the Home Secretary, over the advice received from the Government of Northern Ireland, personally ordered his detention, was it not up to the Home Secretary to see that every avenue was explored, in order to give this man a proper and fair deal?

"A PUBLIC SCANDAL"

Mr. Peake replied that the Home Secretary had gone beyond what was legally necessary. He did not think the Home Secretary could be expected to do more than to apply his mind to the case impartially, having received the chairman's report.

Mr. McGovern—As the question is a narrow one, contained in a letter as to whether Mr. Healy intended to take any action during the war or following it, is it not up to the Home Secretary to see that a case of this kind is publicly known and this individual is given a decent opportunity of defending himself, even though he may, as an Irishman, object to the Advisory Committee?

Mr. Peake said that he did not know that Mr. Healy had put forward any demand for his case to be heard. He had refused to accept the tribunal of te House for hearing objections against detention orders.

Mr. McGovern said that it was a "public scandal."

BIG DUBLIN FIRES

LOSS TO THE NATION

Three big fires in Dublin within the last month have caused £80,000 damage, and businessmen are taking greater precautions against fire in the larger premises.

A serious feature of the fires, apart from the damage caused, is the irreparable loss of goods. In Messrs. Smith's, the quays, where a building worth £70,000 and containing some £30,000 worth of goods, fortunately was saved, the damage to stock alone was about £25,000; at Messrs. Winstanley, the total damage is reckoned at £20,000 and, at the Raleigh Cycle premises, loss is estimated at a similar figure. In each instance the goods are irreplaceable, and the firm's loss is the country's loss.

Big fires in Dublin happen in numbers never less than three at a time, and there is a tradition in the fire brigade that a big fire is inevitably followed by at least two others. The last big fires occurred in September, 1940, when there were six in a few weeks, and, of course, the string of fires in the winter of 1935-1936 which created a "fire-bug" scare, will be recalled. Since the fire in Messrs. Johnston, Mooney and O'Brien, Ballsbridge, in January last, the brigade did not find it necessary to turn out more than once during the night until four weeks ago.

The need for greater precautions against fire was emphasised by a municipal official yesterday, who said that while many people took precautions against fires, the general attitude was that a fire was just something that happened, and, when it happened, it was just too bad.

INCREASE OF SCABIES

NEW SOURCE OF CURE

Scabies is increasing at an alarming rate in Ireland and England, and nobody knows why. Out-patient wards in Dublin at present are treating more than twice their usual number of patients, and so rapidly is the disease spreading that stocks of the standard cure—sulphur ointment—are running short. A comparatively new cure, derris root, is being substituted, and is operating more quickly and efficiently than sulphur ointment. As this lotion—also used to destroy warble fly in cattle, and caterpillars—comes from Malaya, however, future supplies cannot be guaranteed.

"At first we thought that the disease was originating in England, where many of the people were forced by raids to live in cramped, dirty air-raid shelters," an expert on the subject told an Irish Times reporter yesterday. "Although the large-scale bombings have ceased, the existence of scabies is becoming more prevalent every day. The drifting population was also blamed, but this, too, has disappeared to a certain extent. All these possibilities have been investigated in England, but so far no satisfactory reason has been unearthed."

While there is no actual difficulty in curing scabies, so long as supplies last, it is a tedious task. If one member of a family is affected, the clothing and bedding of all those living in the same house have to be treated. It is as easy, however, to cure an attack which has been in existence for a year as to cure one which has had a hold for only a day or two.

DOCTORS' MOTOR CARS

WARNINGS ISSUED

Forty-six Dublin doctors were called upon by the Ministry of Supplies to explain what seemed misuse of their cars. Forty-five of them replied, and in eleven cases the explanations were regarded as unsatisfactory, and warning letters were issued to the doctors concerned. So Mr. Lemass, Minister for Supplies, informed General Mulcahy at question time in the Dail yesterday.

The Minister added that one permit had been withdrawn and another was still under inquiry. In all cases where information reached the Department indicating possible misuse of a vehicle a letter would be sent to the person concerned, and the permit would be withdrawn if the explanation tendered were considered unsatisfactory.

BRITISH EVACUATE FRONTIER POSTS

AXIS 60-MILE PUSH INTO EGYPT

THE main British Army has been withdrawn from the Egyptian frontier, and General Ritchie's forces have evacuated Sollum, Sidi Omar and Halfaya Pass.

Axis advanced elements have reached Sidi Barrani, which Rome claims has also been captured.

Marshal Rommel's vanguard, already 60 miles inside Egypt, is about 240 miles from Alexandria, and, though Cairo G.H.Q. reported only the British withdrawal from Sollum and Sidi Omar, it is evident, says Reuter's Military Correspondent, that the whole positions along the escarpment on the frontier, from north to south, have been abandoned.

Marshal Rommel is also moving considerable forces across the border south of Sheferzen, 150 miles from the Mediterranean, and opposite the Siwa oasis, where a desert track to Suez begins.

Berlin claims that in Libya, since May 26, 50,000 prisoners have been captured.—(Reuter.)

BERLIN, Thursday.—A German military spokesman said to-night:—In North Africa German military circles are of the opinion that the goal of the sharp pursuit fighting is not to reach some far-flung geographical objectives, but to exploit the victories of Tobruk, Bardia, Capuzzo, Sollum and Halfaya, and to smash every remnant of the British 8th Army.

German Radio states that the British 9th Army, stationed in Palestine and Syria, is being concentrated near Haifa, the largest port between Turkey and Egypt. "It is assumed that parts of the army are to be transported to Egypt," it is added.

German Radio to-day quoted "competent military quarters in Berlin" for the claim that 50,000 prisoners have been taken in Libya since May 26, and that the British have lost more than 1,000 tanks.

NEW BRITISH LINE

Reuter's correspondent says that withdrawal from the frontier was not unexpected, as the line was badly situated for defence, but the 40-mile line, stretching south from Mersamatruh, is a naturally strong position, provided General Ritchie can obtain sufficient reinforcements to man it. His northern flank would be secured by the sea and the southern by the Taref hills and Quattara, a wide, soft-sanded region, in which operations by tanks and other armoured vehicles would be extremely difficult. Mersamatruh has well-developed water supplies, and a railway to the main base at Alexandria behind it.

LONDON, Thursday. — To-day's R.A.F. Middle East communiqué states:—"Fighter bombers and day bombers of the R.A.F. and South African Air Force made numerous attacks throughout yesterday. On large columns of enemy motor transport and tanks in the forward area moving north-eastwards to the south of Sheferzen. An enemy column moving north was also bombed. Preliminary reports show that much damage was done to enemy columns. Throughout the day our fighters patrolled the forward areas. They destroyed a ME. 109 and AG. 50. Objectives between Tmimi and Derna were attacked by our fighters.

"Last night a heavy raid was made on shipping and the harbour at Benghazi."

CHINA RAILWAY BATTLE

JAPANESE PUSHED BACK

Press Association and Reuter reports state that last night's Chungking communiqué announced that by a 12-mile advance west of Keiki, Chinese troops had widened the gap between the Japanese pincers on the Kiangsi-Chekiang railway.

This gain followed the recapture of Kweiki, which was the furthest point reached by the Japanese thrust East from Nangchang, the Kiangsi capital. Fifty miles north-east of Nangchang Chinese forces, counter-attacking vigorously from three points, are encircling Fuchow, 50 miles south-east of Nangchang.

Strong Chinese forces are pressing down from the north-east between Yingtan and the south shore of Lake Poyang, meeting with feeble Japanese resistance, the communiqué adds. At Likiatu, north-west of Fuchow, the Chinese engaged in a terrific artillery duel. One contingent stormed across a river and is rapidly pushing down towards Fuchow. Chinese forces attacking from the south were fighting in the outer suburbs of Fuchow on Tuesday. Some 40 miles south-east of Fuchow, at Nangchang, the Chinese are fighting in the immediate environs of the town.

The Japanese have captured Lishui, in Chekiang, which has an aerodrome in easy bombing range of Japan.

It is officially announced that the American Volunteer Group disabled a Japanese gunboat and destroyed three small boats on the Yangtze River, south of Hankow.

Sebastopol

The siege of Tobruk, which lasted for eight months, will rank among the most notable episodes of the present war; but when history comes to be written even that most gallant stand will be overshadowed by the siege of Sebastopol. Sebastopol is not a newcomer to the pages of military history. Nearly ninety years have passed since its name, with those of Inkerman, Balaclava, and the Alma, rang throughout the civilised world; but, in comparison with the fighting that has been in progress during recent weeks, the Crimean War only was a skirmish. It is eight months now since the Germans began to lay siege to this important fortress. Its garrison has defended itself with remarkable tenacity, but it is only during the last three or four weeks that it has been required to meet the full force of the German and Rumanian attack. Since the fall of Kerch, the invaders have had a marked superiority in respect of numbers. General von Manstein, who, in common with most of Herr Hitler's generals, is a professional soldier of unusual ability, has been employing every artifice known to military science in his efforts to smash Sebastopol's defences. He has thrown vast numbers of troops and tanks into the attack; but, so far, although he undoubtedly has made progress, he has been unable to pierce the fortress's defences, and, as we write, Sebastopol remains in Russian hands. According to yesterday's bulletins, the Russian High Command has created an important diversion by the landing of fresh troops on the Crimean Peninsula. These troops, it seems, have been conveyed across from Caucasian ports, and have managed to establish a bridgehead in the foothills of the Yaila Mountains, whence they have been able to attack the Germans in the rear. The Russian reports admit that the situation is "crucial"; but they declare that General von Manstein has suffered appalling losses, and that his casualties in dead alone have been the equivalent of three infantry divisions. In response to the Russian landings the Germans are stated to have brought up reinforcements from Simferopol, to the north-east of Sebastopol, and from Feodosia, to the east. It is manifest that General von Manstein is making a supreme effort to overcome the garrison's resistance, and many competent observers believed that Sebastopol would have fallen at least a week ago. During the first eight days of the present month, in addition to a heavy artillery bombardment, six thousand bombs were dropped on the town from the air; but the Russians have contrived to keep the garrison going by sea and by means of air-borne supplies. The full importance of Sebastopol's stand remains to be seen. According to German spokesmen, not only the attack on the Crimean fortress, but also the offensive in the Volkhov sector of the Leningrad front and the operations at Kharkov, are only "half-measures," and must not be regarded as part of the real German offensive, which has not yet begun. Herr Hitler is reported to have gone back to his headquarters on the Russian front after a short stay in Germany. We may expect, therefore, to hear of increased activities along the whole line from Murmansk to the Sea of Azov, and the events of the next hundred days will make history. In the meanwhile, however, the garrison of Sebastopol is qualifying for an honoured place in the military pantheon. Not only in the Crimea, but also at Kharkov and in the far North, the Russians are fighting with magnificent dash, contesting every inch of yielded ground regardless of the cost, and setting an example of human heroism to the world.

Family Allowances

War calls attention to many weaknesses in the social fabric, and lends an impetus to social services. Without the present war who could have believed that a British Government, predominantly Conservative, would be giving serious consideration to the question of family allowances? Yet Mr. Churchill's Government has promised to announce its decision on the subject during the autumn, and there is little doubt that the decision will be favourable. The popular demand for family allowances is great and growing; virtually everybody, indeed, has accepted the principle, and the only dispute is over the form that the allowances will take, and the scale on which they will be allotted. The general view is that an allowance of 5s. weekly ought to be made to every family in respect of every child. That is the ideal course, but it would cost the Exchequer approximately £130,000,000 a year—which is a substantial sum, though small in comparison with Great Britain's expenditure on war. The cost could be reduced if the allowance were made only in respect of every child after the first; but such a compromise finds little favour. Another school of critics believes that the allowance ought not to be made in cash, but in goods and services. The view of these critics is that the money might not be devoted to the children's welfare; the father of the family might spend it on beer, or the mother on films. Instead, they say, let the children receive free milk, free medical and dental attendance, even free footwear. To these sentiments the answer is made that those goods and services ought to be furnished by the State in any event; many of them, in fact, are provided already to the poor; and the family allowance must not be offset against the social services, but must be supplementary to them. Yet another question arises: Who will be eligible for family allowances—all the children in the State, or only the children of the poor? Here the answer seems to be overwhelming: There must be no discrimination. Otherwise, all the bitterness associated with the "means test" will be revived. Some poor families will be forbidden by pride to apply for the assistance that they sorely need; others will "fake" their incomes so as to render themselves eligible. It may appear strange that Lord So-and-so should receive 5s. a week on behalf of his infant son, whose name has just been "put down" for Eton; it even may seem unfair; but, if Lord So-and-so's pride is hurt, he always can divert the money to charity. The debate on family allowances promises to be interesting; for such a reform cannot be affected without the closest scrutiny into its possible effects. For example, the Labour Party is by no means easy in mind. It suspects that the system of allowances might be employed as a means to keep wages at a low level, and will demand every possible reassurance. Nevertheless, the principle has obtained a uniformly good reception in the Press, and nobody doubts that family allowances will become an established feature of British social policy either during or immediately after the war.

The Dogs of War

There has been a considerable amount of agitation in the English Press of late for official action in regard to pet dogs and cats. It is held that these animals are useless and unproductive, and an unjustifiable drain on the nation's food supplies; and that, for this reason, they should all be destroyed, unless it can be shown that they serve a useful purpose. A correspondent in The Times has now taken up the challenge. He writes: "My dog is completely useless, and I intend to keep him." This defiant declaration is an example of the type of opposition which would have to be faced in any attempt to enforce an order for the destruction of pet dogs. Such attachment to a dumb animal may seem to be purely sentimental, and a luxury not to be justified in wartime. A dog, however, is more than a mere chattel; his raison d'etre is greater than that of a family photograph or a wedding-present clock which has ceased to work. Friendship in any form is valuable. A man's dog is often more important to him than another's pipe or book-in-bed to him; a luxury, perhaps, but one which has so built itself into the framework of life as to be almost on a par with the recognised necessities. In many cases the domestic dog consumes very little food which would be fit for human consumption. His diet is based on the waste which, even in the best-planned households, appears to be inevitable at every meal. This is not the position of the show-dog, the champion, the pedigreed pup with a string of rosettes to his credit; his food is a matter of far more vital concern, as a rule, than that of his kennel-man. The show-dogs, however, form a very small part of the dog population. The greater part are mongrels and spaniels and terriers, whose lineage is uncertain, and whose mission in life is to watch over a household—the Plutos and Montmorencys of the great world. It is a question whether the distress and loss of spirits caused to the owners of these "useless" dogs by their destruction would not more than counterbalance the loss caused by feeding them. In any case, the point is one which should not be allowed to arise until a time of the direst emergency; and then—who knows?—the family which has retained its pet may reap its reward when he is served as the main course at Sunday's luncheon.

CRUISKEEN LAWN

By MYLES NA gCOPALEEN

I'VE a queer bit of news for you. The brother's nose is out of order.

What?

A fact. Some class of a leak somewhere.

I do not understand.

Well do you see it's like this. Listen till I tell you. Here's the way he's fixed. He starts suckin the wind in be the mouth. That's O.K.; there's no damper there. But now he comes along and shuts the mouth. That leaves him the nose to work with or he's a dead man. Fair enough. He starts suckin in through the nose. AND THEN DO YOU KNOW WHAT?

What?

THE —— WIND GOES ASTRAY SOMEWHERE. Wherever it goes it doesn't go down below. Do you understand me? There's some class of a leak above in the head somewhere. There's what they call a valve there. The brother's valve is banjazed.

I see.

The air does leak up into the head, all up around the brother's brains. How would you like that? Of course, his only man is to not use the nose at all and keep workin on the mouth. O be gob it's no joks to have the valve misfirin. And I'll tell you a good one.

Yes?

The brother is a very strict man for not treatin himself. He does have crowds of people up inside in the digs every night lookin for all classes of cures off him, maternity cases and all the rest of it. But he wouldn't treat himself. Isn't that funny? HE WOULDN'T TREAT HIMSELF.

He is at one there with orthodox medical practice.

So he puts his hat on his head and takes a walk down to Charley's. Charley is a man like himself—not a doctor, of course, but a layman that understands first principles. Charley and the brother do have consultations when one or other has a tough case do you understand me. Well annyway the brother goes in and is stuck inside in Charley's place for two hours. And listen till I tell you.

Yes?

When the brother leaves he has your man Charley in bed with strict orders not to make anny attempt to leave it. Ordered to bed and told to stop there. The brother said he wouldn't be responsible if Charley stayed on his feet. What do you think of that?

It is very odd to say the least of it.

Of course Charley was always very delicate and a man that never minded himself. The brother takes a very poor view of Charley's kidneys. Between yourself, meself and Jack Mumb, Charley is a little bit given to the glawsheen. Charley's little finger is oftener in the air than annywhere else shure wasn't he in the hands of doctors for years man. They had him nearly destroyed when somebody put him on to the brother. And the brother'll make a job of him yet, do you know that?

No doubt.

Ah yes. Everybody knows that it's the brother that's keepin Charley alive. But begob the brother'll have to look out for himself now with the nose valve out of gear and your man Charley on his hands into the bargain.

Is there any other person to whom your relative could have recourse?

Ah, well, of course, at the latter end he'll have to do a job on himself. HAVE TO, man, sure what else can he do? The landlady was telling me that he's thinkin of openin himself some night.

What?

You'll find he'll take the razor to the nose before your're much older. He's a man that would understand valves, you know. He wouldn't be long puttin it right if he could get his hands at it. Begob there'll be blood in the bathroom anny night now ....

He will probably kill himself.

The brother? O trust him to look after Number One. You'll find he'll live longer than you or me. Shure he opened Charley in 1934.

He did?

He gave Charley's kidneys a thorough overhaul, and that's a game none of your doctors would try their hand at. He had Charley in the bathroom for five hours. Nobody was let in, of course, but the water was goin all the time and all classes of cut-throats been sharpened, you could hear your man workin at the strap. O a great night's work. Begob here's me bus!

Bye bye.

LONDON LETTER

50 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
THURSDAY NIGHT.

MR. J. L. HODSON is one of the four or five most brilliant war correspondents in the Commonwealth. He has also a considerable reputation as a novelist. In an article in to-morrow's Spectator on "Optimism from Cairo," he says that the Press, which would, on the whole, welcome the blunt truth, does not always make it easy for the military authorities to do all they might to assist. In Cairo alone a few months ago there were no fewer than seventy war correspondents, which, he thinks, too large a number. "No army at war can afford good facilities to an unlimited number of correspondents," he says. "Nor can a G.H.Q. take a host of men of unequal quality into its close confidence. It is natural, though, that the greater the numbers become the more jealously will privileges both of movement and criticism be regarded . . . The truth is that with our large and not particularly well-regulated number of correspondents — in all theatres of war—much goes on unobserved. No writer accompanied the R.A.F.'s 1,000-bomber raids, and, as often as not, nobody is with the Navy on its important occasions . . . Resources are not made enough use of, not enough pooling of men's work is resorted to."

"Plugging" Tea

Mr. Hodson adds, as a postscript: "Six months or so ago it was noticed by the censors in Cairo that the despatches written by a certain gentleman introduced the subject of tea. Soldiers were having a gruelling time, but tea revived them. The duties of such and such a service were manifold, but they always found time to go and put a kettle on the fire. The articles and stories this correspondent told were quite interesting, but they all lightly brought in the subject of tea. The writer was called up for questioning. Yes; it was as the censors had suspected. He was working for some tea industry or association, or something of that sort." "All very amusing," comments Mr. Hodson, "but some little distance removed from Henry W. Nevinson or Sir Philip Gibbs. But if numbers grew to 365—the total number of war correspondents accredited to Cairo—what have you, as the Americans say?"

The Spur of Profit

Mr. Austin Hopkinson, the Member for Mossley, who is a big manufacturer, made a remarkable speech in the House on the vote of another £1,000 millions for the cost of the war. "With regard to the question of profit being a spur to production, and supposing—though I do not believe it to be true—that it is necessary to adopt that policy and stick to it, what do we do next? We immediately arrange an excess profits tax to skim off all these profits which, ex-hypothesis, we say are a spur on production. The E.P.T., well-intentioned as it is, is to a large extent evaded. It is one of the taxes which honest men pay and dishonest men do not, because it is unsound in principle, as it goes against all the proper canons of taxation, and, therefore, it is extremely difficult to frame orders in such a way that a dishonest man cannot evade them. I have evaded it myself without having to practise any really serious degree of dishonesty. The way is quite simple. What one does is, having calculated the amount of E.P.T. for which one is going to be liable in the current year, simply to work for the public service for nothing to the extent of that tax, with the result that the fighting services get 20s. in every one of these pounds, instead of the Inland Revenue getting only, perhaps, 6d. in the pound, the rest being poured down the drain."

Irish Composer's Concerto

The first performance of Mr. E. J. Moeran's new violin concerto is being given by the London Philharmonic Orchestra in the 48th Promenade season, which Sir Henry Wood opens on Saturday. This season Sir Henry will have two associate conductors, Sir Adrian Boult and Mr. Basil Cameron. The reason is that the London Philharmonic will play during the first month of the "Proms," and the B.B.C. Symphony Orchestra will take over for the second month.

Building Workers Deferred

Some thousands of Irish workers in the building and civil engineering trades will continue to be deferred from service in the forces following to-day's announcement that, while the reservation age in these trades has been raised to 41, men so de-reserved will not be called up on account of the urgent demands for constructional work, if engaged in approved employment. Deferment will be given to all over thirty if employed on vital work, as most building and civil engineering employés are.

Ban on Racing

General Smuts has personally intervened to suspend South Africa's horse-racing "Classics." Only the Durban July Handicap, the principal racing and social event of the year, will be held. The chief reason for his action is the necessity for restricting railway travel. It is nothing for many hundreds of punters "well in the know" to travel the 1,000 miles between Cape Town and Johannesburg or Durban for the big meetings. The ban is in line with the recent railway edict that potatoes should get priority over people.

AN IRISHMAN'S DIARY

Stephen Gooden

Miss Teresa Deevy, the distinguished dramatist, writes:—

While the honour recently bestowed on Augustus John was brought to our notice by the Irish Times, there was no mention in any Irish newspaper of the one other artist whose name appeared on the Honours List. Stephen Gooden, the English engraver, has been given a "C.B.E." in recognition of his work on the George Medal.

Apart from the interest we all feel in the recognition of art in every country, Stephen Gooden claims a special Irish interest; for he is married to an Irishwoman, he knows Ireland, and loves Ireland, and some exquisite samples of his rare craftsmanship are to be found in Dublin houses.

His wife (formerly Mona Price) is well known to readers of the Dublin Magazine for her poems, translations from Ronsard, and imulating book reviews. I think that many of those who were her friends in Trinity College days will be glad to read of her husband's distinction (no English engraver has been so honoured for the last two hundred years), and will unite in congratulations to her, and to her mother and sister, who live at Bray.

Wanted on Voyage?

A friend of mine, who claims to have been an eye and ear witness, related to me the following incident about a young man who had just returned from a visit to the United States. Mr. Jenkins (as we may call the young man in question) boarded a 'bus at Aston's quay which was to convey him home to Limerick. The 'bus filled up, and departure time arrived; then, just as the 'bus was due to move, an official poked his head in the door.

"Anyone in here named Jenkins?" he shouted.

The young man stood up, rather embarrassed, in the front of the 'bus.

"Where are ye going?" demanded the official.

"Limerick," was the answer.

"Well, yer —— luggage is labelled for New York!"

Petrol—1916

When the present Government announces that petrol is no longer to be available for private motoring, the private motorist and his various associations accept the inevitable. Everyone realises that the only way to have the use of a car is to masquerade as something other than a private motorist or to execute some sort of "wangle."

During the last war, when there was a British Government in charge, the usual procedure was to "make representations" or "bring pressure to bear."

I have just seen a 1916 issue of the Irish Cyclist and Motor Cyclist, in which the subject of petrol restrictions occupies a lot of space. In those days a motor cyclist was allowed only two gallons of petrol a month (as compared with none to-day)—but he was permitted to use paraffin, and there are many references in the motor cycling papers of the time to the smell thus created.

In 1916, of course, motor cycles were almost as numerous as cars, and not, as to-day, a small minority among motor vehicles generally.

Strawberries

The other day, passing one of the city shops, I noticed mounds of luscious strawberries in the window. My mouth watered. I was at once seized by a desire to go in and buy a basket ("punnet," I understand, is the technical word). When I entered the shop I was surprised by the number of people who had, apparently, conceived the same idea. There was a line all along the counter, and business seemed to be brisk.

What, I wonder, is the secret of the attraction of strawberries? I could not myself explain why, the moment I saw them, I rushed to buy some. It is not that I have a passion for the flavour—I can think of many I prefer—or that I was in need of that particular variety of nourishment. The brevity of the strawberry season seems to invest the fruit with a sort of May-fly glamour, which can be resisted only by the most obtuse palate.

DENTAL SURGERY

In Dublin at least twenty whole-time dental surgeons would be required to care for the 50,000 National School children. There are, in fact, only two.

Making this disclosure when reading a paper before the Irish Dental Association, Dr. E. Sheridan said that the dental profession must try to convince the authorities of the hard cash value of dentistry in the State. It must be clearly shown to them, and they must be made aware of the extent and gravity of the disease and ill-health—with resulting industrial incapacity—which were due to diseases of the mouth and teeth. They must be made to realise that an efficient dental service was the front line of preventive medicine.

Mr. D. L. Rogers, Dean of the Dental Hospital, said that in this branch of public health it must be brought home to the Government that it was flagrantly neglecting its duty to the State.

Dr. Sheridan was congratulated on his appointment as Vice-President of the Royal College of Surgeons.

BOILED THE KETTLE WITH HIS CRUTCHES
Once Crippled With Rheumatism
Now Back at Work
He was crippled with rheumatism, his case considered hopeless. Yet he burnt his crutches. He writes:—
"For five years I was a cripple, due to rheumatism, and was given up as a hopeless case. I also had a bad stomach, and I could never enjoy a meal without my food repeating on me. One day an old friend of mine told me to try Kruschen Salts.
"After taking two bottles I was able to sit down and enjoy a good meal, and also have a good sound sleep—a thing I had not done for years. I was also getting about more freely. One morning I got up and lit the fire, and boiled the kettle for a cup of tea. My mother thought I was crazy, because I sawed my old crutches up and boiled the kettle with them.
"That was six years ago, and I am now back at my old job as a chef—and a chef puts in long hours on his feet."—H.A.B.
Do you realise what causes rheumatism? Nothing but sharp-edged uric acid crystals, which form as the result of sluggish eliminating organs. Kruschen Salts can always be counted upon to clear those painful crystals from the system. And more! They ensure such perfect internal regularity that no such body poisons as uric acid are ever able to accumulate again.
Kruschen Salts is obtainable of all Chemists. Price 1/9 per bottle.

PITCH AND TOSS "SCHOOLS"

COURT STORY OF RAIDS

RAIDS on "toss schools" at the Green Lanes and Captain's Lane, in the Crumlin-Kimmage area, on Sunday, March 29th last, during which a knife was used and two men injured, were described in the Central Criminal Court, Dublin, yesterday, before Mr. Justice Conor Maguire and a jury.

James Haddock (23), of no business, Ash street; Lawrence Campion (22), labourer, McDowell avenue, Mount Brown, and Thomas Reid (21), carter, Slievemore road, Crumlin, were charged with conspiracy and with wounding with intent; Patrick Morrin, Poddle Park, Kimmage, and Michael Pidgeon, Kildare road, Kimmage. They were also charged with robbery with violence and larceny.

The State case having concluded, the Judge, addressing the jury, expressed the view that it would be unsafe to convict Campion, and he asked them to acquit him. Campion was then discharged.

The further hearing was adjourned until this morning.

RIVAL "SCHOOLS"

Mr. P. J. McEnery, K.C., for the prosecution, described how the three accused men, with three others, proceeded to the "toss schools" to break them up and rob them. Those six men had a "toss school" of their own, and they regarded the others as rivals. They accomplished their purpose at the Green Lanes, and got away with 9/-. A man named Cullen, who took the money, was not before the Court. They then proceeded to the Captain's Lane, but the men there set upon the raiders and broke up the "Commando force," but not before two of their force had been wounded.

Richard Harmon (18), Clonard road, Crumlin, said that on March 29 Cullen asked five others, including the three defendants and the witness, to go to Green Lanes "toss school" and break it up. Here, and at Captain's lane, Cullen took the money. Campion asked witness for a knife, with which Campion "made a few sweeps" at a man named Pidgeon.

To Mr. Good—Cullen had given him the knife some time previously to mind for him. The witness did not see Reid or Haddock take any part in the affair. In the District Court he had said that he was not too sure that Campion was the man who attacked Pidgeon.

Patrick Morrin and Michael Pidgeon then gave evidence. Pidgeon said that the tip of the knife cut him across the face. He had a slight doubt that Campion was the man. Morrin said that he was stabbed from behind in the shoulder.

James Haddock, in evidence, said that Cullen asked him to go to the "toss school" at Green Lanes. If he had known his intentions he would not have gone. He saw Cullen pick up money and walk away. As he did so Harmon gave him a knife. He heard Cullen roaring "I was only getting change." Cullen told a man to pick up some money, and while he stooped he stabbed him in the back and jumped over a wall.

FOOTBALLER'S CLAIM

ACTION AGAINST CLUB

Thomas Morrison, professional footballer and Scottish international, Gardiner place, Dublin, sued Drumcondra Association Football Club, in the Circuit Court, Dublin, yesterday, for £210, of which £200 was claimed for wrongful dismissal and £10 as balance of a sum of £40 agreed to be accepted by the plaintiff in full settlement of all claims by him under the Workmen's Compensation Act in respect of personal injuries sustained by him on February 5, 1939, when he suffered from a broken leg while playing against Bray Unknowns.

The defence was that the £40 agreed on was paid, and a denial that he was wrongfully dismissed.

Judge Davitt awarded the plaintiff £12 10/- with costs, but dismissed the claim for wrongful dismissal.

INTERESTING ACTION.

Holding that the work on which Owen Meegan, contractor, Inniskeen, County Monaghan, had been engaged was work done in pursuance of a public duty for Monaghan County Council, Mr. Justice Martin Maguire, in the High Court, Dublin, ruled that Mr. Meegan was entitled to rely on the Public Authorities Protection Act, and gave judgment for him, with solicitor and client costs, in an action that had been brought against him by Con Markey, farmer, Rossdreanagh, Carrickmacross, for damages for personal injuries.

Mr. Markey's case was that a horse that he was driving on February 18, 1941, bolted when approaching a steam traction engine working a stone crusher, hired to a contractor by Mr. Meegan on the instruction of the Assistant Surveyor of Monaghan County Council, and that he was pinned between the wheels of the cart that the horse was drawing and the parapet of the bridge at Iongfield cross road, Carrickmacross.

The action was heard before a jury, who found in favour of Mr. Markey, and assessed damages at £1,090.

Mr. Justice Martin Maguire, giving a stay, said that he regretted that he had to rule as he had done.

OBJECTION TO ORDER

The hearing of a summons taken out by Hendron Brothers, machinery merchants, Upper Dominick street, Dublin, against Dublin Corporation, in regard to the Denmark Street and Moore Street Area Compulsory Purchase Order, was opened and adjourned.

Messrs. Hendron Brothers seek to quash the Order, in so far as it affects their property, alleging failure by the Corporation to comply with the requirements of the Housing (Miscellaneous Provisions) Act, 1938, and that their interests had been prejudiced.

It was stated that Messrs. Hendron had bought premises in Denmark street, in October, 1936, for £3,500, and had lodged reconstruction plans, to cost between £5,000 and £6,000, with the Corporation. The plans, with modifications, had been approved by the City Architect's Department, but later a notice, under the Town and Regional Planning Act, had been served on them, prohibiting the work. They had since unsuccessfully tried to obtain alternative accommodation. If they were deprived of their premises, fifty employés would be affected.

For the Corporation it was contended that the area concerned should be used for the housing of the working classes. It had been the subject of plans and schemes since 1918, and officials were preparing plans for use at the earliest possible date.

QUESTION IN WILL

Mr. Justice Martin Maguire, sitting as Judicial Commissioner, in the High Court, Dublin, yesterday, held that the residue of land bonds, the net value of which approximately was £650, were not comprised in a bequest in the will of Miss Mabel Grace Moore, Hotel Esperanza, Torquay, of her property in Carlingford, County Louth, and accordingly went to her nephew, John Alexander Leslie Moore, South Kensington, London, in his capacity as executor on a partial intestacy. He also held that they were charged with an annuity amounting to £50, payable to Miss Moore's nieces, Mrs. Nora Mabel Brodison and Miss Connie Grace Moore, both of Bulawayo, South Rhodesia, in common with Miss Moore's houses and lands in Carlingford.

Mr. Charles S. Campbell, K.C., with whom was Mr. W. I. Hamill (instructed by Messrs. Dickie, Coulter and Hamill), for Mr. John A. L. Moore, said that Miss Mabel Grace Moore died in England on January 18, 1938, leaving house property and lands, both agricultural and non-agricultural, in Carlingford. Before the execution of her will, which she made in July, 1936, the agricultural portion of the lands had been sold to the Land Commission and converted into Land Bonds. Accordingly the question arose on her will whether the Land Bonds were captured by its provisions regarding her property in Carlingford, and the effect of the will charging the annuity on the property.

THEATRE SUMMONED

In the Dublin District Court yesterday, before District Justice Hannan, a summons against Louis Elliman, Gaiety Theatre, South King street, for a breach of the licensing regulations on February 6th was dismissed.

Evidence of finding ten persons in the dress circle bar after the permitted hour was given by Sergeant Feeney.

The defence was that efforts were being made to clear the bar. The bar attendants had left, and drink had not been sold or exposed for sale.

TRIAL TRANSFERRED

An application on behalf of the Attorney-General to transfer to a special Criminal Court a charge against M. Morgan, haulage contractor, 33 Bolton street, Dublin, concerning the export of a lorry to the six counties, was granted by District Justice Burke, in the Dublin District Court yesterday.

Morgan was charged that on September 16, 1941, he unlawfully exported from the twenty-six counties to the six counties a motor lorry, the exportation of same not being under or in accordance with a licence.

Merzan was granted bail, himself in £200 and a surety of £200.

SOCIAL CLUB FINED

A fine of £10 for a breach of the Licensing Laws on Saturday, April 11th last, was imposed on the Irish Press Social and Athletic Club by District Justice Hannan, in the Dublin District Court yesterday. It was stated in evidence that at 10.30 o'c. on the night in question 30 or 40 persons were found after hours in the bar of the Hawkins street premises.

The District Justice said that on account of the way in which the case was put, he had been influenced in favour of the club. The facts were admitted. There was now a new committee in charge of the club. The law's provisions as to Saturday nights were well defined, however, and while he would not like to do anything which would embarrass the new committee of the club, the regulations must be enforced by penalties adequate to enforce them.

ACTION FAILS

A High Court jury yesterday found in favour of Brian McCabe, hackney car owner, St. Patrick's terrace, Dundalk, and Mr Justice Hanna gave judgment for him accordingly, in an action that had been brought against him by Edward Tomany, foreman bricklayer, Faughil, Ers., Jonesborough, County Armagh, for damages for injuries suffered by his having been knocked down by Mr. McCabe's motor car at Carrickavon on December 14, 1940.

The Lord Mayor (Alderman P. S. Doyle, T.D.) drawing the winning tickets in the raffle held yesterday at 51A Dawson street, Dublin, in aid of the Queen's Institute of District Nursing in Ireland. Also in picture are: Viscountess Powerscourt, Lady Moore, the Countess of Meath and Lady O'Loghlen.

STOCK MARKET REPORTS

DUBLIN EXCHANGE

The public was still inclined to mark time, and consequently there was little or no improvement in trading on the Dublin Stock Exchange yesterday. Apart from Home Rails, which made an improved showing on good support, markets were almost devoid of features.

Home Government Funds were firmer for choice, and the Second and Fourth National Loans added fractions; 4 p.c. Land Bonds moved up to 105¾, but Agricultural Credit 5 p.c. 1st Series relapsed 35/- to 102½.

British Funds were idle, but Dublin 5 p.c. 1946/76 firmed up to 106. Banks held steady to harder, and both Nationals and Provincial New were hence better.

Guinness Units again lacked support and declined to 90/. Home Rails were about the only bright spot. On good buying, Great Southern Pref. advanced to 18, the Guaranteed gained 30/- at 38, and the Deb. closed 33/6 higher at 62½. Great Northern Pref. made headway to 40.

Draperies showed a little more life, and Crowe Wilson Ord. tended higher. Ever Ready (Ireland) Ord. rose further to 7/7½, and Goodbody Pref. fetched 1/- higher at 22/-. Alliance Gas Ord., Dublin Transport Ord. and Solus "A" Ord. all held steady.

B.A.T. Ord. recovered slightly to 76/10½, but Imperial Tobacco Ord. gave way to 121/6. Coats Ord. dipped to 35/3, and Eng. Sewing Cotton Ord. quoted 27/-. Woolworth Ord. changed hands at 53/6 and R. Thomas Ord. at 6/6½.

LONDON UNSETTLED

Though the London Stock Markets yesterday opened with a somewhat steadier appearance, the latest news about the Egyptian situation had the effect of unsettling markets, and further losses were general. Business continued to be quite small, Gilt-edged held around previous day's levels. Among Foreign Bonds, Brazils tended downward. British Rails continued to fall. Great Western and Southern Pref. 4'ord. being down ¼ at 44¼ and 63½ respectively.

The Industrial Market had another dull day, the slow, downward movement continuing. Brick Shares were adversely affected by the Simmonds Committee report on the brick industry, London Brick being among the biggest losers of the day with a fall of 1/3. Among Tobaccos, "Rats" continued to lead the downward trend with a loss of 7½d. at 75/7½. "Imps" managed to hold on to an early rise of ½. Breweries were somewhat better, and Guinness and Bass held gains of 6d. each. Distillers retained 3d. at 73/3.

Among Stores' Shares slight pressure was sufficient to send Harrods down to 34/—a loss of 1/-; while Woolworth shed a further 3d. at 52/7½. Marks and Spencer were well maintained.

After a firmer opening, South African Gold Mines reacted, Developing Kaffirs being a weak market. Bisvoor fell 1/- to 26/6 and West Wits. ½ to 4. In Diamonds, Cons. African Selection came down to 14/6 and De Beers a further ½ to 7½.

Oils continued to show the same easier tendency, all the leaders being down again. Anglo-Iranian, Shell, and Burmah were the chief sufferers with falls of 7½d. each.

WALL STREET

NEW YORK, Thursday.—The leaders were narrow, and bullish inspiration was lacking, with a tendency on the part of boardroom customers to step lightly pending developments. After a hesitant start, however, fractional deviations either way appeared in the list, with the session the slowest for two years.

The close was irregular. The turnover of 245,000 shares comprised 352 issues, of which 196 advanced, 186 declined, and 170 remained unchanged.—(Reuter.)

LONDON MONEY MARKET

There was still some demand for bills yesterday, though turnover was small by normal standards. It is not expected that the clearing banks will make many further purchases before the turn of the month. Credit remained in ample supply for the market's requirements.

HOUSING PROGRESS

A return issued yesterday evening shows the number of new houses completed and houses reconstructed under the Housing (Financial and Miscellaneous Provisions) Acts, 1932-1941. The grand total to 31st May was 109,355. At the end of the previous month the number was 109,184.

Windsor Slipper Wins in a Canter

MR. JOSEPH McGRATH'S Windsor Slipper proved beyond all measure of doubt that he is our outstanding Irish three years old of the season by an easy victory in the Irish Derby at the Curragh yesterday. In a handy position all through the race, he took up the running two furlongs from home, and kept drawing further away at every stride from his nearest attendants, Grand Inquisitor and Coromyth. The time of the race was 2 mins. 35 secs., as compared to 3 mins. 29 2-5 secs. taken by Watling Street to win the Derby at Newmarket; but at no part of yesterday's race was Windsor Slipper pressed by any of the opposition. He is likely to be retired to the stud at the end of this season with an unbeaten record.

M. C. Collins, his trainer, saddled three other winners in Stop It, who was bought in for £190 after winning the Mountjoy Selling Plate; Mount Leinster and Cameron, who carried an impost of 12st. 13lb. to victory in the Amateur Riders' Race.
